

New and Continuing Challenges

Labor Day has come and gone. You know what that means—OE is officially launched! And this year, as we return to the office and/or have more standardized work schedules, technology plays an increasingly important role. Volatile stock market, inflation on the rise, and uneven hiring practices make for a challenging environment. Feds report that there are roughly two open jobs for every unemployed worker.

REIMAGINING TALENT ACQUISITION

Lots of new jobs popping up this year. Some of the new titles we are seeing include:

- Head of Team Anywhere (Atlassian)
- VP for Product Evangelism (Cotmhub)
- VP for Flexible Work (Zillow)
- Head of Dynamic Work (Okta)
- Head of Remote (Gitlab)
- Global Chief Impact Officer (McDonalds)

NEWS IN THE PLATFORM WORLD

BSwift is for sale! CVS, who owns bSwift through its acquisition of Aetna, is looking for a buyer!

Namely launched their integration with Slack for enhanced communication capabilities.

Employee Navigator has formed a strategic investor consortium comprised of six industry partners, including Paylocity and Aflac, to support the modernization of benefits administration for brokers.

Benefitfocus welcomed Ed Rumzis as the new CTO. He was formerly from bSwift.

FIXING TODAY'S WORKPLACE BY IMPROVING LEADERSHIP

Gallup's State of the Global Workplace: 2022 Report concluded, "Business units with engaged workers have 23% higher profit compared with business units with miserable workers." Yet only 21% of workers around the world are currently engaged. The recommended solution? Manager development.

We can assist with designing a program to take your managers to the next level.
